House of Couture.....

Having the opportunity to photograph some of the hottest designers of the season at the Couture Fashion Show in NYC, I was able to get the scoop on the freshest designs to hit the runway. This was an elitist opportunity which now allows you to journey into the world of couture and check out some hip, fresh new labels sure to rock the house(s).

The show lasted for three days and started with the fresh new look of Edwing D'Angelo. Born in Colombia, South America, Edwing got his inspiration to design beautiful, intricate women's cocktail and special occasion dresses as well as a full men's line.

Other designers included Sararose Krenger, Cecilia Perez, Nedret Taciroglu (Turkey), Soucha Couture (Egypt), Katerina Bocci (Albania) and Romanitza (Romania). Most of these designers are just now being recognized in the States for their amazing talent and ability to create beautiful couture clothing.

A model herself, Ms. Iovan initiated her Romanitza fashion label and she has become one of the most successful designers in Romania. The exquisite detail of her designs is why she is being named one of the most innovative designers of the season.

Another fabulous designer was Soucha from the Middle East. After graduating from the Academia Della Moda in Florence, Italy, Soucha eventually settled in Cairo, Egypt. He continues to base his inspiration on the beautiful shape of a woman and never stops exploring new ideas and design techniques.
